

Heaven preserve us

Wondering what to do with that glut of fruit and veg from your garden? Never fear, Clippy's here, there and everywhere this year, teaching folk the forgotten art of jam, jelly and chutney making. Founder of her own brand of apple preserves, Michelle McKenna, aka Clippy, has been touring the nation working with the National Trust and various cookery schools to produce her one day practical courses. Each workshop will focus on whatever is in season with an added hedonistic twist such as chilli, chocolate, vanilla or ginger. From September onwards you can find her in Shrewsbury, York, Blaenavon and Bristol. For more details go to www.preservingthenation.org
